

Hourly Wages or Project Bidding

Hourly wages can be costly to the client for you are at the mercy of the designer and how fast they work, lesser experience designer may take a longer time to reach the same goals as a more seasoned designer. The choice is totally up to you the client, but however neither is a determination on how the designer performs...some just charge by the hour on everything they do and others bid on the project as a whole. Usually one flat rate sounds the best for most businesses or clients this way there's no hidden cost or extra hours added to the project.